Mentor was made over a period of several months in 2005. The film is made by four young people from Chance UK, a mentoring project for primary school children.

The film explores the relationships between the young people and their adult mentors. Through a series of interviews, animation and poetry, they speak openly about what their year long relationships mean to them and look at how they have changed.

Mentor was made in partnership with Children's Express and was funded by the Islington Children's Fund.
