

The Date

A film by Headliners that promotes the benefits of greater understanding between hearing and deaf communities.

Young people from Headliners in Belfast and the Northern Ireland Deaf Youth Association got together to produce a film that promotes positive towards the deaf community. In the film the young people decided to switch roles - Headliners young people played the role of deaf young people and vice versa. This helped each group get a better understanding of their respective difficulties in communicating. The resulting film delivers a powerful message in a light-hearted manner. The film was written, directed and played by the young people.
